Attorney General Going Ahead With Energy Investigation Plans

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Despite President Carter's energy plans, the state attorney general's office is going ahead with its investigation of energy in Kentucky.

But the President's proposals will narrow the scope of the study considerably.

Atty. Gen. Robert Stephens acknowledged as much Wednesday, but declared his office still will continue its study in the coming months.

A committee of six lawyers was trying to find out, first, if the energy shortage was real or contrived in Kentucky.

Stephens said that seems to be pre-empted by the widespread assumption that, regardless of attitudes about the President's plan, there indeed is an energy shortage.

"But obviously that will continue to be a point of emphasis with us," he said.

He said the staff members engaged in the survey also may not have to delve into the role of Kentucky's Public Service Commission, which regulates utility rates.

"It's my understanding that the President's proposals envision regulation by the Federal Power Commission or some other agency," he said.

Stephens announced his energy study during the bitter cold winter amid alarming shortages of natural gas and fuel oils which forced closing of schools and factories and threatened to affect home heating supplies.

He said his aides, with special knowledge in various fields, aim to have a number of suggestions for a possible severe winter in 1978.

The information will be submitted to Gov. Julian Carroll and the Legislative Research Commission.

"But this is mostly being done to advise the public what did happen last winter and what we might expect," Stephens said.

Assistant Band Director Is Selected To Honor By Jaycees

Frank Schwab, assistant band director in the Murray City Schools, has recently been notified by the U.S. Jaycees of his selection as one of America's "Outstanding Young Men" awards to be presented by the Board of Advisors of the U.S. Jaycees.

Schwab has served as assistant band director for the past three years. He has directed the Murray Middle School Seventh Grade Band and co-directed the Murray High Concert and Symphonic Bands. His MMS Seventh Grade Marching Band has captured second place twice in their division at the Paris Fish Fry, and have been awarded excellent ratings at the Kentucky Music Education Association Concert Band Festival.

The Murray band director is a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve. He graduated from Murray State in 1974 and earned his Masters degree there in 1976.

This is the third major award received by members of the Murray Band staff this year. Joe Sills, director of bands, was selected as a "Distinguished Bandmaster of America" last fall, and James Light, associate director, was named the Stanburg ASRDA "Young Bandmaster of the Year."

"It pleases me greatly that the members of our staff have been recognized for their efforts. I could not express my thanks enough to those dedicated associates that have cooperated and worked so hard to build a quality band program for the young people of Murray," stated Joe Sills, Instrumental Music Supervisor of the Murray School System.

PRO: An Income Tax For Murray?

By JOSEPH L. ROSE
Associate Professor
Murray State University

The Common Council of Murray should adopt a city income tax as a partial substitute for the property tax. This tax would provide a valuable source of supplemental income for the city.

A city income tax is commonly called a payroll tax, though it is actually a tax on any earned income. Since Murray's chief source of revenue is now the property tax, an income tax would take some of the pressure off the property owner.

A city income tax is not a new idea. It is in use in numerous cities throughout the United States. In Kentucky, the tax is levied and collected in such cities as Louisville, Lexington and Covington.

The current tax structure of Murray is too dependent upon property taxes, which are regressive. Lower income persons pay a higher percentage of their income in property taxes than those with higher incomes. The regressive nature of the property tax was recognized by the people of Kentucky when they voted a constitutional homestead exemption for older retired persons.

The city income tax would be a progressive type of taxation and would be based on one's ability to pay. This means that those persons who have the greatest income would pay the most tax. The tax rate would be low, and progressive. As an example, the scale might range from .5 per cent to 2.0 per cent of income. It would be a tax on an individual's gross income, regardless of its source. In addition it would be levied only on income above that which the federal government determines is necessary for a family of four to live. The tax would be levied and collected, on the net profits of businesses and professions. Furthermore, it would be a tax on non-residents who earn income within the city.

The income tax is a means of reaching those who work in Murray, adding to the city's costs, but live outside the city. Though these workers may spend a portion of their salaries in Murray, this does not entirely offset the city's expenses for facilities and services they use. The income tax collected from this non-dweller would allow residents and non-residents to share these expenses.

Such expenses include those for roads and parking spaces, public utilities, police and fire protection, and industrial site development. The Murray taxpayer is faced with maintaining pension funds for the employees who provide these services. The Murray dweller pays a tax to the county that aids the county in performing its services. Presently, the county resident, using the city, pays no taxes to the city. The income tax would offset the resident taxpayer's liability.

Murray pays more than its share of the costs of taking care of the county's lesser affluent residents, such as the poor, the elderly, the unskilled and low income and fixed income retired persons. The additional funds from this tax would make it possible to extend a greater amount of aid to these persons without increasing the property owner's burden.

A high proportion of the property in Murray is used by non-tax paying institutions, such as city, county, state and federal buildings as well as churches. The property taxpayer would have this liability offset by the income tax.

The property tax is detrimental to Murray's development. It can and has encouraged businesses and industries to locate outside of Murray. Most of the employees of these industries live within the city limits. As a result they would have to pay the income tax. The city could use this new money to plan its CON: An Income Tax For Murray?

By HOWARD NEWELL
Associate Professor
Murray State University

My purpose should be made very clear at the outset. Namely, it is to provide a documented but one-sided account of why the City of Murray should not, under any circumstances, adopt a city income tax. Those who favor such taxes have the formidable task of convincing us that we should be made the victims of yet another device of tyranny and injustice! Now how is that for being one-sided?

To begin our story, let's retreat, for just a moment, back about sixty-three years in American history. The year was 1914, and one of the principle headlines of that year concerned the recently enacted Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution which allowed the Congress to write a federal income tax law.

Oh how we might long for the uncomplicated days of 1914! A recent article in Harper's magazine allows us to make some good comparisons between the federal personal income tax then (1914) and today (1975). In 1914 there was no tax on taxable income of less than $3,000 (approximately equal to $17,550 today). The tax rate on taxable income between $3,000 and $20,000 was one (1) per cent. An additional one to six per cent was levied on taxable income above $20,000. Form 1040, including instructions, was four, I repeat, four, pages in length. There were approximately forty-five Internal Revenue Service (IRS) forms in 1914 as against about 4,050 today. The number of words in the tax law has leaped from roughly 10,000 then to approximately 750,000 today. Finally, in 1914, there was one IRS employee for every 24,250 Americans; today, the ratio is one for every 2,609. Is there any wonder why many people today are calling for true tax reform?

Now each reader is properly "set-up." Either you are disgusted by my implication that what has happened to the federal income tax will happen to a Murray income tax or you have just given a hearty amen to my apparently conservative position. In either event, please read further.

Before reviewing the specific reasons against an income tax for the City of Murray, let's briefly summarize the legal aspects of such a tax. Taken together, Section 181 of the Kentucky

Constitution and Section 92.281 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes permit the City of Murray (but not Calloway County) to levy what is called an occupational license tax. An occupational license tax, which is what we have been calling an income tax, would be limited to: (1) a percentage tax on wages, salaries, commissions, or other compensation earned by persons for work done within the City of Murray and (2) a percentage tax on the net profits of businesses, professions, or occupations from activities conducted within the City of Murray. The Murray Common Council has the legal power to adopt such a tax, without referendum approval by city voters, and to determine the rates which would apply.

Now, at last, we are ready to get down to the nitty gritty; that is, to the specific reasons against an occupational license tax or, as we shall continue to call it, an income tax for the City of Murray.

Any tax should be evaluated from two points of view. First, is the tax fair in its application? Second, does the tax result in an efficient use of our (meaning yours and mine) limited economic resources? Below, both of these terms (fairness and efficiency) will be defined more clearly and we shall use them to help organize our discussion of the more specific issues which follow.

The guest list included Mrs. John Trotter, mother of the honoree, Mrs. Ken Wingert, Memphis, Tn., Miss Kathy Rayburn, and former classmates, Ann Chrisman, Donna Stinson, Cindy Ragsdale, Rosemary Graham, Anita Poyner, Dana Alsop, Susan Kennedy, Jann Wingert-Champion, Memphis, Tn., Martha Roberts, and Kathy Rowlett.

Lanette Thurman, director of the Personal Enrichment Center at Murray State University, will be the guest speaker at the potluck luncheon to be held by the Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church on Monday, May 16, at twelve noon at the church. Rainey Apperson, president of the CWF, urges all members and interested persons to attend the luncheon and special program.

Wedding Vows Are Read At Dover Home

One of the lovely spring weddings took place in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Dover at Hazel, on April 14 when Miss Linda Idella Ferguson became the bride of Jimmie Terrell Turner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ferguson of Route 2, Puryear, Tn., and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Turner of Vale, Tn.

The Reverend Gerald Owen of Mayfield, pastor of Sugar Creek Baptist Church, officiated at the 7:30 p. m. double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Homer Maddox, sister of the bride, assisted in registering the guests as they arrived for the wedding.

Miss Teresa Dover presented the nuptial music that included "Because," the "Bridal Chorus" from Midsummer Nights Dream and the "Wedding March" from Lohegrin, all piano numbers. As a solo Miss Dover sang her own special arrangement of "Somewhere My Love."

Vows were exchanged before a white wrought iron arch entwined with sprays of dogwood foliage and blooms and at the center top was a cluster of spring flowers. Other arrangements of mixed flowers and white tapers in silver holders were about the home.

The bride looked lovely in her all white wedding gown of bridal satin and Chantilly lace. The empire bodice was overlaid with lace and the long tapered sleeves were of the Chantilly. A dainty narrow trim of silver braid and seed pearls edged the rounded neckline, marked the waistline and two rows in front continued to the hemline of the A line skirt.

Her shoulder length veil of illusion was held to a profile headdress of scalloped lace. Her jewelry was a diamond pendant necklace and diamond earrings.

The bride carried a spring bouquet of pink rosebuds, white daisies, blue statice and baby's breath with lace and ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Homer Maddox was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. Her floor length dress was of light blue taffeta printed with tiny white daisies with green leaves. It was styled with a high neckline and a wide berth collar over the butterfly sleeves. She had a narrow green satin sash with bow and streamers in front. She wore diamond earrings and necklace that was a gift from Mr. Maddox on this day, their fifteenth wedding anniversary. She had a single blue daisy and baby's breath in her hair and carried a nosegay the same flowers as the brides.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Terrell Turner

Serving the groom as best man was Homer Maddox, brother-in-law of the bride.

Mrs. Ferguson wore for her daughter's wedding, a street length dress of light blue and white printed knit designed with jewel neckline and long sleeves. Her accessories were white and her corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother, Mrs. Turner, was wearing a hycinth blue patterned knit with a scalloped collar, white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Reception following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Dover home.

The bride's table was covered in white with a full gathered floor length skirt caught at the corners and centers with a spray of gysophila and white ribbons in loveknots. Adorning the table was a silver bowl of roses, carnations and daisies flanked by white candles in silver holders. At one end was the beautiful all white three tiered wedding cake decorated with wedding bells, cherubs and hearts. Lacy columns held the top tier that was crested with a large wedding bell over a cherub. The cake was encircled with a white pleated lace ruffle. On the opposite end was a crystal bowl of frosted lime punch. Silver and crystal trays held the blue mints and assorted nuts.

Mrs. Dover presided at the serving table assisted by Mrs. Velda Reynolds. Both wore daisy corsages.

When the couple left for a wedding trip the bride wore a light blue pants suit with a navy blouse and a corsage of pink roses from her bridal bouquet.

The newlyweds are now at their home at Vale.

The wedding guests included Dean Turner and David Turner of Vale; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Turner and son Russ, Kent Maddox and Mr. and Mrs. James Cox of Paris, Tn.

Mothers Are Experts At Home

Mothers find themselves doing many things - on the spur of the moment - unexpected or anticipated. Seldom one complains even though they may be exhausted. This is a post Mother's Day article because I could not get steamed up until it was too late for that special day. It took a telephone call from Debbie in Stephens, a collection of flowers rooted and ready for planting from George who was at the Derby; a pot of gardenias from Lochie Fay and a card from Lore to get me in the mood.

After reviewing Sunday night my motherhood years I breathed a sigh of relief that so many things were behind me. Then I felt for the young mothers who are experiencing what all mothers do in rearing babies to adults. I'll list the diseases of my child in the order of memory - There was colic; and a cold from getting her too warm when she was six weeks old; then the whooping cough - (isn't it wonderful for the vaccine for that,) measles, mumps, poison oak, removal of adenoids and tonsils, appendicitis operation. All these happened to her before she started to school. In the first grade she developed a bad, continuing case of impetigo and had to stay out of school because it is contagious.

But today's mothers have things easier. There are no dirty diapers - they use pampers; bottles for feeding are easier; more clothing may be bought instead of hand-making them; materials are drip dry, there is air conditioned rooms for babies, special foods on the market and it seems the mothers are younger and prettier - their clothes for pregnancy are much more becoming.

Small children's troubles often can be soothed by Mother's kiss, a hug close to her breast, or just holding her in your lap and rocking and singing - or talking.

We still suffer when our children are hurt. We can't kiss these troubles away as we did when they were babies. We can love them and listen or maybe just be together in silence. Discipline is another part of a parent's obligation. What do you do when there is a tantrum because of a refusal of a permission "that all the others are going."

Even Grandmothers are concerned about the grandchildren. No responsibility for their welfare, maybe, but we are looking and listening to help both child and mother.

There is never a graduation from caring for our children, is there?

Children, like adults have different temperaments. Some are sensitive to the feelings of others; some generous; some stingy and greedy; some find fault with parents and show their dispositions in various ways - slamming doors, running away, locking themselves in their rooms; talking back; or they may give you the silence treatment.

"Which Loved Best?"

I had almost forgotten this poem that I learned in the McGuffey's Eclectic Third Reader. Mother had the entire set of McGuffey's books and we read them and studied them for entertainment. Since Mother's Day is past, it might be timely to quote it.

"I love you mother," said little John; Then forgetting work, his cap went on, And he was off to the garden swing, Leaving his mother the wood to bring.

"I love you mother," said rosy Nell; I love you better than tongue can tell; Then she teased and pouted full half the day Till her mother rejoiced when she went to play.

"I love you mother," said little Fan; Today I'll help you all I can; How glad I am that school doesn't keep"

So she rocked the baby till it fell asleep.

Then, stepping softly, she took the broom, And swept the floor, and dusted the room; Busy and happy all day was she Helpful and cheerful as child could be.

"I love you, mother," again they said - Three little children going to bed; How do you think that mother guessed Which of them really loved her best?

North Faculty & Staff Honored

The Faculty and Staff of North Calloway Elementary School were shown just how much they were appreciated when the Parent-Teacher Club members planned a special night of dinner, gifts and entertainment for the thirty teachers, three custodians, and seven cooks on Thursday, May 5, at the school.

A meal of glazed ham, barbecue, fried chicken, assorted salads, vegetables, and fresh strawberry pie were served to approximately two hundred persons.

A special decorated cake with the lettering, "In Appreciation To Our Faculty and Staff" was baked by Mrs. Billie Dover of Hazel.

Individual gifts of jewelry were presented to all the ladies and trim sets were presented the male teachers while the custodians received case knives.

Special presentations included a gold monogrammed pen presented to Mrs. Dulcie Douglas who is retiring this year. It bore the inscription, 1931-1977 North PTC, on the back, and lovely script initials, DSD, on the front.

Mrs. Sarah Alexander, president, presented a plaque to Johnny Bohannon, principal, who will be leaving North this year to accept a position as Supervisor of Instruction, Calloway County Board of Education. In accepting the plaque Bohannon graciously received the gift and said "I have enjoyed very much working with the people at North and I can assure you that you have an excellent staff here. These teachers are just the best."

Following the dinner new officers were installed for 1977-78 who include J. W. Jones, president; Faye Key, vice-president; Marita Burkeen, secretary; Patsy Woodall, treasurer.

Jo Lovett Leads Program At Goshen Women's Meet

The Goshen United Methodist Church Women met at the church on May fourth at seven p. m. for the regular monthly meeting with Jo Lovett as program leader who showed a film, "You Pack Your Own Chute."

This was a documentary on human behavior in the realm of overcoming fears. The film said each one is afraid of something and most of these fears are unrealistic or the ones that exist in the mind. The film illustrated the parachutist pacing his own chute by carefully checking everything so that he was confident of a safe landing. In like manner persons should check their own abilities, take hold of their lives, and begin to live with confidence, the film showed.

Nettie Beach gave the devotion using the theme of "Peace and Peacemakers." The closing prayer was by Ruth Wilson.

Sue Anne Hutson presided at the business session and announced the May Fellowship Day on May 6 and the Lynn Grove-Goshen Week of Prayer program on May 14 at 1:30 p. m. at Goshen.

The hostesses, Mary Ray and Agnes Wright, served refreshments to twenty-one members in the fellowship hall.

ROAD REVIVAL — WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Time and usage take their toll on roads, just like people. But unlike humans, roads can be renewed indefinitely.

Based on an average life expectancy of 22 years for new pavement, one-fourth of the nation's 3.8 million miles of roads have reached "middle age" and need rejuvenation, says The Road Information Program (TRIP).

These 938,305 miles are 15 years old or more and should be resurfaced to insure longevity and safe, smooth driving. Failure to resurface means they will eventually have to be completely rebuilt at 4½ times the cost of repavings, says TRIP.

Dear Abby

A Boy Babysitter- And Proud Of It!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The problem is not with me but with some people I know. First, I am a boy.

Why do they think it's "unmasculine" for a boy to babysit?

I'm a senior in high school, and I've been babysitting since junior high. I have sat with children as young as four days old and some were ten and eleven years old. I don't say this in a bragging way, but some of the people who have hired me say I'm better than most girl babysitters my age.

I like children, and I really enjoy babysitting. Besides I think it's good practice for fatherhood. (Not to mention the money I'm saving for college.)

I hope this makes your column. A lot of us boy sitters who get teased for doing "sissy" work would appreciate it.

BOY BABYSITTER

DEAR BOY: My hat is off to you and to all the other boys who enjoy babysitting and regard it as good training for fatherhood. And what a compliment to be left in charge of parents' most precious possessions—their children!

DEAR ABBY: Recently I drove through a small "art-colony" village in Pennsylvania, which is normally frequented by tourists.

I got the shock of my life when I saw about 75 young people all dressed exactly alike—in blue denim! I wondered if there had been a prison break, or an invasion of the "Union Army."

What is it with our young people? They have about as much individuality as connected sausage links. They all look alike. Same dress, same jeans, same long straight hair—it's hard to tell one from the other. Go anywhere young people gather, high schools, colleges, social affairs, it's the same story. Why are they afraid to be different?

It wasn't like that 20 years ago. Kids looked and acted like individuals and enjoyed it.

WONDERING WANDERER

DEAR WANDERER: The young people who dress uniformly today do so because they want to identify with each other. There is comfort and security in "belonging" to a gang, group or band. And if it makes them happier, what's the harm?

DEAR ABBY: Please help me! I am pregnant, but I never went all the way. I know that's hard to believe, but it is true, so help me God!

I'm 17 (so is he) and we have gone steady for a year and five months, during which time we did a lot of very heavy petting, but I swear to you that I am a virgin. We came close, but never actually went all the way.

How can I get my parents to believe me? They will think I am lying for sure. Have you ever heard of this ever happening to anyone else?

Please help me. We love each other very much, are graduating in June and plan to be married.

NEEDING HELP

DEAR NEEDING: Yes, I have heard of such cases. It is indeed possible for a girl to become pregnant and remain a virgin. Girls who do everything "but" qualify only as technical virgins, but virgins they are.

VOTE FOR JIMMY CHERRY for Sheriff

To the people of Murray and Calloway County for the benefit of the voters that do not know me, I am a resident of Murray Route 8. I am 35 years old. My wife is the former Patricia Hargis. We are the parents of three children, Debbie, Steve and Holly.

I have never held a public office in the city or county. I have no obligation to anyone in the city or county. The reason that I seek this office of sheriff is because I need the job and because I want to do something about the drug traffic, stealing and cold checking that the taxpayers and business people are faced with today.

I have not been putting up posters on every telephone pole and fence post because most of the posters end up on the ground anyway and as you know we do have a public litter law in this state.

To me "word of mouth" is the best way to find out about someone. I will not go into detail to make a list of promises to you which I probably would not keep. My only promise to the voters of this city and county is to do the job to the best of my ability. I have never held a job on the police force or in the sheriff's department. My qualifications for the job is just plain common sense. As most of you know, this job should not be a popularity contest and black or white, everybody will be treated alike. So if you see fit to vote for me on May 24th, your vote will be greatly appreciated.

P.S. I am number 6 on the ballot.

Tiger Sophomore Hurls 12-0 Win

Taylor No-Hits Lakers, Murray District Champs

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor

There's something about Calvert City that Brad Taylor must like.

Two years ago in the Pony League State Tournament at Calvert City, Taylor fired a no-hitter in pitching the Murray All-Stars to the state crown.

Wednesday afternoon at Calvert City, Taylor pitched another no-hitter. This time he pitched the Murray High Tigers to the District Tournament championship, handcuffing Calloway County 12-0.

For Tiger coach Charles Archer, the tourney title was a belated birthday gift. Archer turned 35 years old Tuesday.

Murray had advanced into the championship game with a 9-8 win Tuesday over Marshall County while the Lakers drew a bye and an automatic berth into the championship.

Taylor did not go to the game Tuesday because he was sick. For the Lakers, Taylor's illness ended a day early.

Taylor was like a bro-dignagian circus lady, he couldn't have been touched with a 10-foot pole.

The only time the ball was really hit hard was a hard grounder down toward third where Thomas Kendall was unable to come up with the ball on a rather tough play but the official scorekeeper (from Marshall County) ruled the ball as an error as did both the Murray and Calloway County scorekeepers.

Taylor coasted the rest of the way. He chalked up 11 strikeouts and walked three. Taylor was at times overpowering with his fastball while his curve looked better than any curves you might see on Charlie's Angels.

It appeared the game was going to be quite a pitching duel between Taylor and Laker mound ace Tommy Chavis.

With one out in the fifth, Lindsey Hudspeth took care of Chavis' shutout bid. With one swing of the bat, Hudspeth made it 1-0 as he blasted his third homer of the season, a deep drive into the power alley in rightcenter.

Chavis settled down and got the side out then worked through the fourth inning in a breeze. Going into the last of the fifth, Murray led only 1-0 and it appeared that could well be the final score.

On Tuesday, Murray scored seven runs after two men were out in the fourth inning, proving the old saying that "it's never too late."

With two out in the fifth and nobody on, Thomas Kendall of the Tigers singled and went on to steal second. Then cleanup hitter Tony Bayless, who had worn the collar the day before, ripped an inside pitch over the bag at third for a two-base hit and Kendall trotted in with the second run of the game.

That sprung the leak and what resulted as a flood of Tiger runs.

Taylor aided his own cause with a single, scoring Bayless and it was 3-0. After Jeff Oakley was hit by a pitch, Bill Wilson doubled in a run. Then catcher Dean Cherry ripped a hard hit into the hole at short and two runs came home, making it 6-0 for the Tigers.

Mickey Spann hit an opposite field double into right but no runs scored then Hudspeth was intentionally walked to fill the sacks.

Hudspeth was walked so the Lakers would be able to get a forceout at any base. Bob Thurman followed by hitting the ball on the ground only it was the ground in the outfield and two more runs came home.

Chavis should have been out of the inning there, behind 8-0 but the Lakers got a bit rattled and two runs came in when a ball was dropped in short right center.

The inning ended with the Tigers posting nine runs and seven hits, all happening after two men were out.

Murray added two unearned runs in the sixth inning.

In the top of the seventh, Laker coach Clayton Hargrove emptied his bench and let some of the reserves get action and three pinch-hitters all were retired to cap Taylor's no-hit performance.

Through the first four innings, Chavis struck out seven batters and of course, gave up just one run. He managed to go the distance and fanned a total of 10 while walking four. All but two of the runs were earned.

Murray High belted 10 hits in the contest with Hudspeth and Bayless each getting a pair.

Both the Tigers and Lakers will be in Regional Tournament play next week at Calvert City. The drawing for the six-team event will be held Sunday afternoon.

The Lakers drop to 4-8 with the loss while the Tigers, who have now won eight consecutive contests, stand at 11-3 on the season.

Young A's Continue To Knock Around Pitchers

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Oakland's Mitchell Page is making American League pitchers rewrite the book.

And as far as Boston pitcher Ferguson Jenkins is concerned, you can include the A's Wayne Gross and Earl Williams.

"I went to slow stuff in the fifth inning," said Jenkins, "but by then it was too late."

Jenkins gave up only five hits, but three were home runs by Page, Gross and Williams as Oakland downed the Red Sox 3-1 Wednesday.

"I threw a hard slider to Page, fastballs to the other two guys," Jenkins said. "Next time, I'll throw them nothing but slop."

Gross has nine home runs this season, second best in the American League, while Page is tied for third with eight. Williams' was his seventh.

Doc Medich, 2-2, went the distance for the victory. Boston's only run was unearned as Carlton Fisk, who had three hits, doubled home Jim Rice, who had reached base on an error.

In other AL games Wednesday, Cleveland clipped Milwaukee 4-3, Detroit stopped Minnesota 8-3, the Chicago White Sox nipped Texas 4-3 in 10 innings, Seattle defeated the Yankees 5-2 and California blanked Baltimore 6-0.

Indians 4, Brewers 3
Paul Dade's sacrifice fly scored Frank Duffy from third and lifted Cleveland to its third straight victory over Milwaukee. Wayne Garland, a free agent who signed a 10-year, $2.3 million contract with the Indians, scattered eight hits in eight innings, including a homer to Von Joshua, in winning his first game of the season after four losses.

Tigers 8, Twins 3
Detroit snapped Minnesota's four-game winning streak with a four-homer attack, handing Greg Zahn his first loss after five straight victories.

Rookies Phil Mankowski and Mark Wagner led off the fourth inning with consecutive homers, sending Zahn to the showers. Ben Oglivie and Milt May also homered in the Tigers' 12-hit attack.

White Sox 4, Rangers 3
Singles by Richie Zisk, Jim Spencer and Chet Lemon's capped a 3-3 deadlock and lifted Chicago to its 10-inning victory over Texas. Chris Knapp, 4-1, held the Rangers to six hits while the White Sox pounded three Texas pitchers for 10 hits.

Mariners 5, Yankees 2
Enrique Romo tossed 2 2-3 innings of shutout relief as Seattle snapped a seven-game losing streak and downed the New York Yankees. Both Yankee runs came on Reggie Jackson's fifth homer of the season in the first inning.

The Mariners used two bloop hits and an error by loser Ken Holtzman to score their runs.

Angels 6, Orioles 0
Bobby Bonds, Don Baylor and Ron Jackson slammed consecutive home runs and Frank Tanana scattered six hits, leading California over Baltimore.

Tanana, 5-1, hurled his second shutout of the season, striking out seven and walking none, as California posted its third straight victory.

EVERYONE HAD IT TOUGH — Ricky Garland displays the frustration Calloway County had Wednesday, trying to hit against Brad Taylor of the Tigers. Taylor fired a no-hitter and struck out 11 batters in pitching the Tigers to the win.

Maybe you don't make a $3,000 loan every day, but we do.

Actually, that's just a middle-size loan for us these days. We make some for less. And a lot for a lot more.

So we're not a "small-loan" company, but a large loan center. And a good one.

Homeowner loans, too.

When you're after really large amounts, the equity in your home is a valuable asset. You can use that equity to back very sizable loans from us. And that's nice to know.

Next time you want money, whatever the reason, think of us. If you're more comfortable feeling you can depend on us for small loans, we really don't mind. Because you can.

But remember, we mostly think big.

New Position

NEW YORK (AP) — Lindy Infante, a 36-year-old offensive coordinator at Tulane University last season, was named receiver coach of the New York Giants of the National Football League Wednesday. He succeeds Hunter Enis, who resigned.

Infante played three seasons for the University of Florida as a running back and defensive back, then signed with Hamilton of the Canadian Football League. He coached at the University of Florida, Memphis State and Charlotte of the old World Football League.

Norton Win Insures Fourth Bout With Ali

NEW YORK (AP) — In some musty safe there lies a contract for Norton vs. Ali No. 4.

"We've signed the contract, Ali has signed the contract, and we're counting heavily on it," said Bob Biron, manager of Ken Norton. "We expect to get Ali before the end of the year."

Biron was very evasive about the details of the contract Wednesday night, shortly after Norton had destroyed highly-regarded Duane Bobick.

And when Norton was asked about it, he replied, "You'll have to talk with my manager. He handles all those details."

But it was clear that a fourth fight with the world heavyweight champion was in the forefront of Norton's thinking.

"My attitude about it is $2½ million and the crown," said Norton. "Of course, Ali will get most of the money."

The fight is rumored for September in Rio de Janeiro.

Norton, weighing 222½ pounds, came out swinging. His first punch, a right, caught Bobick in the throat, and that was it. A couple more rights landed, and Bobick toppled to the canvas. He reached his feet at the count of nine, but referee Petey Della stopped the contest, 58 seconds into the first round.

"I felt he would apply more pressure early," said Norton, "but he wasn't that aggressive, so I decided to take action."

Bobick, at 26 five years younger than Norton, addressed the press after the fight in a squeaky, crackling voice.

"After I got hit in the throat," Bobick said, "I couldn't do anything. I'm a slow starter anyway, and he just came out barreling for me."

Besides the throat punch, Norton caught Bobick with several overhand rights to the head, an uppercut and a heavy body shot.

"There'll be another day for me," said Bobick, who weighed 215½. "Sure I'd like to fight Norton again, but I don't think he wants me right now. He wants that title."

Bobick said he was ready to continue after the knockout. "I felt I was ready to go on. I was a little wobbly, but everything was clear," he said. "But the referee said no. I'm not knocking the referee. It was his decision."

ANOTHER HIT — Lindsey Hudspeth slams one of his two hits he picked up against Calloway County Wednesday. The other hit was a long, solo homerun in the third inning that broke a scoreless pitching duel.

Norton-Bobick 'Fight' Complete Sports Farce

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Like a tornado striking a Kansas farm house, it was over in 58 seconds.

A man in the red-cushioned $50 ringside seats reached down to pick up his hat. A lady in a long white gown turned to speak to a mustachioed man behind her. Another man reached in his pocket for change to buy a beer.

They blew the fight completely. NBC-TV set an all-time record for reruns. The midnight show came on an hour early.

Tail, hard-hitting Ken Norton gets another shot at Muhammad Ali — his fourth. They're already booked — contracts signed and in the safe — for a title fight in Rio de Janeiro in September.

It's appropriate. The end of the season's reruns on the big tube. Will fight fans stand still for a fourth Ali-Norton fight for millions of dollars?

Tune in next September.

And young Duane Bobick, boxing's new "Golden Boy," the handsome ex-Olympian who came up from the cow country of Bowls, Minn., almost destroyed in a first-round knockout after 38 straight victories — what of him?

"He is young and strong. You haven't heard the last of Duane Bobick," Norton said graciously afterward.

The polite farm boy with the shock of curly copper hair is too good to lose so early. He seems a foreigner to his craft — modest, pleasant, soft-speaking, without bombast.

He took a terrible right hand shot to the throat early in the battle. Water welled in his eyes. He couldn't see. He became a helpless target of Norton's slashing, relentless fists — a vicious blow to the stomach, a right to the head, right, left, right, left.

Blood spewed from Bobick's handsome features and he crumbled. At the count of nine he rose on rubbery legs, his face a dazed mask of bruises and blood. Referee Petey Della stopped it.

It was quick and merciful. Bobick had been brought along too quickly. He was a young bear thrown into the arena with a roaring lion.

Bobick's voice was so raspy, from the blow to the throat, that he could barely be understood. He had no alibis.

"I start slow, I didn't have a chance to get loose," he explained. "He came out barreling to get me."

Somebody asked him what he remembered about the fight.

"There wasn't much to remember," he replied, giving the smartest appraisal of the bitter night.

Another reporter suggested that maybe the fight proved what some had charged, that Bobick's victories were over setups. Could this bout have proved it?

"There must have been one live body in the bunch," he answered.

How would he describe his disappointment?

"Shucks," he said.

Braves' Skid Reaches 17, Reds Whip 'Cards

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Ted Turner is in the dugout and Dave Bristol is in limbo.

Turner, the flamboyant 38-year-old yachtsman and broadcasting executive who owns the Atlanta Braves, decided he needed a close-up look at what was wrong with his team, which had lost 16 games in a row. So Wednesday he told Bristol, his manager, to take a 1-day vacation, and donned the manager's cap himself.

There was no noticeable effect — the Braves lost No. 17, 2-1 to Pittsburgh.

"It seemed like I had done all I could, sitting up in the stands," explained Turner, who doesn't have a baseball background and is learning all strategy matters to coaches Vern Benson and Chris Cannizzaro. "I wanted to see what it's like down in the trenches."

From those trenches he got an eyeful of Dave Parker, the slugging Pirates outfielder who is tearing up the National League. Parker had two hits, including his sixth home run of the season in the third inning which snapped a 1-1 tie.

Parker now has hit safely in 12 consecutive games and is batting .437 — both major league highs. And the Pirates have won 11 in a row, the longest streak in the majors.

Bristol, meanwhile, was "taken aback" by Turner's move.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Montreal Expos 5-1, the San Francisco Giants trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1, the Houston Astros whipped the Chicago Cubs 8-2 and the San Diego Padres swept a twinnight doubleheader from the New York Mets 6-3 and 4-3.

The Braves almost sent their game into extra innings, but a long hit by Darrel Chaney in the ninth inning, which would have scored the trying run from first base, bounced over the wall for a ground-rule double, forcing pinch-runner Pat Rockett to stop at third. Reliever Rich Gossage then retired Rowland Office, ending the game.

Reds 5, Cards 1

Dave Concepcion had two singles, drove in one run, scored one and stole three bases, leading Cincinnati past St. Louis. Jack Billingham got the victory, with relief from ex-Cardinal Mike Caldwell.

Cubs 8, Astros 2

J.R. Richard pitched a five-hitter for his first victory since April 12 for the Astros. He also drove in a run as Houston scored five times in the third inning in snapping the Cubs' six-game winning streak.

Dodgers 5, Expos 1

The Dodgers scored all their runs in the seventh inning. Bill Russell stroked a two-run single, Steve Garvey and Manny Mota drew bases-loaded walks and Dusty Baker drove in the final run with an infield single.

Padres 6-4, Mets 3-3

Dave Winfield drove in four runs in San Diego's two victories, over the troubled

Mets. Winfield had a two-run homer in the opener as the Padres knocked out Mets ace Tom Seaver after three innings, his shortest stint of the season. Bill Almon's two-run single helped Randy Jones to victory in the second game.

Giants 4, Phillies 2

Bill Madlock's two-run homer in the fourth inning snapped a 1-1 tie for the Giants. Lynn McGlothen, 2-3, got the victory with a six-hitter.

NBC May Have Set New Record For Commercials

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — NBC prepared a feast for boxing fans Wednesday night but the main course turned out awfully skimpy.

The Duane Bobick-Ken Norton heavyweight fight was supposed to be the centerpiece of an evening of boxing. But when Norton disposed of Bobick just 58 seconds into the first round, the network was left with time to kill.

So what did they do? They interviewed everyone they could, showed the replay three or four times and fired off volleys of commercials until, mercifully, it was time for "The News."

Too bad. What started out as a diverting combination of boxing and entertainment ended in a hail of commercials. The network showed no fewer than five barrages of commercials — averaging four flugs per barrage — over the final 25 minutes of the show.

I suppose it was necessary. NBC paid a lot of money for the fight and had to get it back somehow. But 20 commercials in a 25-minute span seems a bit much.

If the main course was a disappointment, the hors d'oeuvres were just fine. The Mike Quarry-Mike Rossman preliminary bout was good and NBC's cameras were all over the action, coming up with stunning closeups of Rossman flailing away at Quarry against the ropes.

We also got a look, via tape, at Olympic gold medalist Howard Davis beating up overmatched Carlos Gonzalez. Davis is a joy to watch, even against an unworthy opponent.

"It's almost as if he's practicing on the heavy bag," said Larry Merchant, who along with Dick Enberg and Joe Garagiola formed NBC's announcing team for the affair. Enberg called the fight, Merchant offered commentary and Garagiola was the over-all host.

The entertainment segment of the show consisted of film clips from famous Hollywood boxing movies over the years with Merchant offering some observations.

But the highlight of the show was Sylvester Stallone talking about his role as "Rocky" in the Academy Award-winning film, then teaming with Carl Weathers to recreate the dramatic fight scene from the movie. Stallone and Weathers demonstrated various sequences, then the appropriate scene was shown as it appeared in the movie.

Ron Greene Named Cage Coach For 'Dogs

The success of Murray State graduates continues in the area of coaching as former Racer basketball star Ron Greene has been named the new cage coach at Mississippi State.

The rumors had been circulating in Starkville since early in the week but were confirmed in a press conference held Wednesday in Starkville.

Greene has been the head basketball coach at the University of New Orleans, which for the past two seasons has played Murray State.

Greene has been at New Orleans since 1966 and last year, his club finished 18-10, playing in the Sun Belt Conference.

Greene started the cage program at New Orleans and in only two years, his team was among the top college division clubs in the nation.

A native of Terre Haute, Greene played under Cal Luther at Murray from 1959-62. After graduating, he stayed on to work on his master of arts and coached the freshman team.

After a stint in the Army, he became assistant coach at Loyola University in New Orleans and the next year, took over the job at what was then LSU-New Orleans.

Greene will have all five starters back next season at Mississippi State, which finished 14-13 this season.

Bruins Vow To Get Revenge In Tonight's Third Playoff Game

By FRANK BROZN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Montreal defenseman Serge Savard listened to the charges of aggravated assault that the Boston Bruins were leveling at his teammates. And he grinned.

"It sounds like they're trying to promote a wrestling match," he said, slightly bemused by the threats that revenge would be sought tonight in Game Three of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals.

If that's the case...

In this corner, wearing the gold, black and white, the Bruins. And in that corner, in red, white and blue, the Canadiens.

The featured match pits Montreal's Larry Robinson against Boston's Stan Jonathan. The 6-foot-3, 205-pound Robinson might be a slight favorite should he continue his adversary relationship with Boston's 5-8, 175-pounder.

That started, as did most of the other matchups, on Tuesday night, when the Canadiens recorded a 3-0 triumph on Ken Dryden's playoff record-tying fourth shutout and a goal and two assists by Steve Shutt. It gave Montreal a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Then we'll have Montreal's Rick Chartraw in a possible rematch with Garry Doak, who was blasted by a Chartraw check in the third period. That started the fighting that brought a sour end to the second game.

"I don't care if they hate me," Chartraw said of Boston's players and fans. "I don't live there and I don't play there. It's slurring the game when you get guys like (Boston's John) Wensink." Wensink has vowed to "get" Canadiens right wing Guy Lafleur in the evening's main event.

Malone Fires In 30 As Rockets Run By 76'ers

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston Rockets guard John Lucas sat in front of his dressing cubicle exhausted, but with a look of deep satisfaction etched on his face.

"It was unreal, but I just knew if I could get back to familiar surroundings I would play well and so would the team," Lucas said Wednesday night after directing the Rockets to a 118-94 victory over Philadelphia in their National Basketball Association playoff series.

Criticized for his inability to control the tempo in two previous losses to the 76ers, Lucas had his hand on the pulse of the game all the way Wednesday as the Rockets narrowed Philadelphia's lead to 2-1 in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference championship series.

"Tonight we could dictate a little more what was happening," said Lucas, a rookie from the University of Maryland. "When you get the lead, you can have something to say about what to do."

The Rockets got a big early lead, zooming ahead 21-8 with 5:39 left in the opening quarter, and it was Lucas who led the surge, hitting 10 points in the first period.

Lucas hit a driving shot for the first two points of the game and the Rockets were in the lead all the way as they throttled the 76ers' running game.

"We didn't do anything different, we just played our game," Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke said. "We were able to keep Mo (Moses Malone) and Kevin (Kunnert) in there for a while. Usually Kunnert will wind up with five fouls and we have to get him out."

But this time Kunnert didn't get into foul trouble, and in fact, played a key role in keeping the 76ers from getting their fast break going.

"Kunnert was hitting that little short jump shot over the middle and C. J. (Caldwell Jones) was having to go over and guard him," 76ers forward George McGinnis said. "That keeps us from getting the fast break going."

The Rockets led 33-20 by the end of the first quarter and expanded the margin to 59-41 by halftime. Philadelphia made one run at the Rockets, outscoring Houston 15-3 in the first four minutes of the third quarter. Then Calvin Murphy hit two straight baskets, Malone scored on a dunk and two free throws, and the Rockets again were out of trouble.

Power Mower Users Are Cautioned Of Dangers

Power mowers, those great weekend time savers, will soon be used in record numbers as householders begin their annual lawn grooming and landscaping.

A word of caution about these labor saving machines, however, comes from the state Department for Human Resources (DHR), which reports an estimated 50,000 Americans will receive hospital emergency room treatment this year for injuries caused by power mowers.

In addition, the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that some 40,000 serious injuries result yearly from chain saws, hedge trimmers and other outdoor power equipment.

Injuries range from cuts and bruises, to amputation of fingers and toes, projectile wounds, burns, electric shock and death, according to E. Edsel Moore of the Division of Consumer Health Protection in DHR's Bureau for Health Services.

"The prime hazard with power mowers is obviously contact with the rotating blade," Moore says, "but other hazards are gasoline, inadequate footwear such as sandals and gym shoes, loose clothing that may get tangled in the equipment and children operating the equipment."

Moore offers the following suggestions to avoid injuries associated with the walk-behind or "push" power-mowers:

— When purchasing such a mower, check for: A read guard to protect hands and feet from blade, a grass discharge opening that is aimed downward, handles that have "upstops" to prevent them from moving forward when the mower hits an obstacle, an exhaust system aimed away from the grass-catching bag, and a complete set of operating and safety instructions.

— When using the mower: Read and heed the advice in the owner's manual; rake away wires, rocks, and twigs before mowing; never mow a wet lawn; never refuel mower while it is running; and keep children away from machine and gasoline.

— When maintaining the mower: Replace all loose or broken parts, especially blades; keep gasoline in well-ventilated area and tightly sealed; and get expert servicing regularly.

Gasoline or electric chain saws are the second leading hazard in such equipment. These tools frequently cause injury when the operator inadvertently touches the moving chain or swings the saw downward when used at or above waist level. Injuries may also occur when control of the saw is lost or malfunctions.

Power hedge trimmers also cause a considerable number of injuries each year, primarily amputated fingers, according to Moore. "People trying to change hands while the trimmers are running, people moving branches out of the way with one hand while operating the trimmer with the other or people trying to hold the cord away from the blade are the most frequent situations where fingers are lost," he said.

For both the power chain saw and hedge trimmers, Moore advises operators to read instructions and follow recommendations, have equipment serviced regularly and keep children away from the equipment.

A limited number of promotional outdoor power equipment safety kits, which include user's guides for power mowers, hedge trimmers, chain saws, riding mowers and garden tractors, are available free of charge.

The kits also include safety decals, litter bag, meeting announcement flyers, press releases and radio scripts.

For a free packet, write E. Edsel Moore, Department for Human Resources, Bureau for Health Services, Division of Consumer Health Protection, 275 East Main, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call (505) 564-4537.

Double-Amputee Learning Mechanics

Sam Early is learning auto mechanics. This is not unusual, but Sam, a 17-year-old high school junior in Somerset, has no legs. When he was 12 years old, doctors were forced to amputate Sam's legs because of a birth defect.

However, this has not stopped Sam from tackling life—with a vengeance. For the past year he has been enrolled in the auto mechanics program at Somerset Vocational School. "I have always been interested in automobiles," said Sam, who has a driver's license and drives his father's car.

Sam, one of more than 5,000 handicapped students enrolled in vocational education programs in the state, spends the morning at the vocational school and the afternoon at his high school.

Despite the number of surgeries Sam has undergone, he maintains a cheerful outlook on life and insists that he is not physically limited in what he can do.

Sam has been fitted with artificial legs, but "They slow me down in the auto shop," he said, so he doesn't use them at school. "I use them when I go to the shopping center or a place of business," he said.

Jack Massey, Sam's instructor in auto mechanics, said Sam can do anything in the shop. "He catches on quickly. I just have to show him once how to do something. He doesn't forget," Sam's scores on the auto mechanics written test are also above average, Massey said. "Sam would have no trouble getting a job as an auto mechanic."

When asked what advice he would give a handicapped person, Sam replied, "Keep on going; don't give up," and he practices his own advice.

Sam, who is also very interested in agriculture, is a member of the FFA, raises pigs, some of which he shows, and has several horses. "Just good old riding horses," is how Sam describes them. And among his accomplishments is horseback riding.

Sam also enjoys fishing, and one fishing story told about him occurred some time ago. Massey and several others picked Sam up at this house to go fishing. "All along I was wondering how he would do," said Massey. "Well, we got to our destination, started fishing from the boat, and one of the lines got caught on something."

"Hearing water splashing, we turned to see what was going on. It was Sam. He had jumped over board," said Massey. "He had untangled the fishing line and was swimming alongside the boat. We found out Sam could take care of himself—and us."

Sam lives with his adopted parents who are his older sister, Evelyn, and her husband, Richard.

Peace and Quiet—State Parks

By Paula C. Moore

Peace and quiet... that's something many Kentucky State Park visitors value most when they come to vacation in the Bluegrass State. Peace, quiet and a place where the children can run and play safely; where everyone can sit back and relax and enjoy everything the park has to offer. And the individual very much responsible for making the hope a reality in Kentucky parks is the park ranger... the "peace and quiet officer."

Of course, the ranger could also be described as an information specialist, a first aid specialist, a public relations specialist and a law enforcement officer. He is trained for these exacting responsibilities in programs sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Parks.

One such program is the annual in-service workshop held each year for rangers on the job. The workshop includes training in firearms, department rules and regulations, report writing, first aid and lawful arrest. But the overriding emphasis in the training, according to Lt. Col. Harry Robertson, assistant director for the Division of Rangers, is placed on the public relations aspect of the ranger program. According to Lt. Colonel Robertson, "Enforcement comes afterwards."

In fact, a park ranger will go to extreme measures to keep from having to arrest an individual. "But," Lt. Colonel Robertson stresses, "We'll take whatever actions are necessary to protect our park patrons."

Fortunately, the park ranger rarely has to take severe action in the way of enforcement because, according to Lt. Colonel Robertson, "His very presence is an important deterrent to crime, particularly vandalism."

The ranger is available to help visitors of all ages in an educational way. He is involved in a special Junior Ranger Program which is modeled after the National Park System's program of the same name. It was initiated in 1973 in Kentucky's parks.

Designed for children 6 to 16 years of age, "Junior Rangers" develops a good relationship between youth and law enforcement officers and, according to Lt. Colonel Robertson, "It gives the children a realistic picture of a law enforcement officer... not someone to be afraid of, but a friend."

In cooperation with the park's recreation director, the ranger holds meetings explaining park regulations and why they must be enforced. He then asks his Junior Rangers to help him by seeing that the rules are observed.

The children each receive a badge and often get a chance to climb into the ranger's cruiser to hear the siren and turn on the flashing lights.

The ranger is the best man to contact for almost any emergency from car trouble to snake bites. He is in radio contact with medical and other services outside the park, should their assistance be necessary, and can bring help at a moment's notice.

So, next time you're visiting one of Kentucky's fine State Parks and you see a ranger, give him a wave and a smile, or feel free to stop and chat. He's there to assist you in any way he can and is anxious to help you have a good, safe and memorable visit.

The earliest known estimate of the earth's circumference was made by Eratosthenes of Cyrene (276-194 B.C.). His estimate was remarkably accurate.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1977

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) You may have an unusual opportunity to advance your interest immediately — one which could have an important bearing on the future as well. Accept.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) Scattered efforts will confuse, lead you off course. You can win big gains if you buckle down to essentials and STAY with them.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) You always enjoy a challenge, and you may face some interesting ones now. Tackle with vigor, but don't undertake ventures you would not usually consider.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) Domestic affairs, possibly a personal matter will need some extra attention. Do not, however, neglect daily chores or business needs because of it.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) Some unprecedented situations or unusual propositions indicated. Study well, but defer taking action until early next week.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Stars auspicious. Be observing, mindful of future needs. Especially favored: teachers, scholars, all those in the communications fields.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Mixed influences. Question and investigate where there is margin for error. Do not accept suggestions blindly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) Quick decisions may now be required due to suddenly changing situations. Be ready to think and act — but without anxiety.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Seeking an easy solution to a complex problem may only compound the complications. Face up to it, tackle it as you should, and there'll be no sorry aftermath.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A day in which you could be error-prone, so give careful attention to details — especially in domestic matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Stress your perceptiveness. A bit of shrewd observation will enable you to note certain new trends, obtain valuable information.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Look for some unusually pleasant communications from those at a distance; also, new contracts which could prove invaluable in a business way.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most versatile individuals in the entire spectrum of the zodiac. Governed by Venus, the planet of love and beauty, you are naturally endowed with the potentials to succeed at almost any of the arts but, in addition, you have a practical side which fits you for many other careers. Thus, if you do not take up painting, sculpture or music, at which you are particularly adept, as a career, you may follow one or the other avocationally. Other fields in which you could succeed: business management, the law, jurisprudence, teaching or horticulture. Traits to curb: obstinacy and jealousy. 28 Courses To Be Offered By MSU During Three-Week Intersession

A total of 28 courses have tentatively been scheduled as offerings during the three-week intersession at Murray State University May 16-June 2.

Dr. William G. Read, vice-president for academic programs, said students who have not pre-registered for the short session between the spring semester and the summer term should meet the first scheduled class on May 16 and report to the Admissions and Registrar's Office in Sparks Hall between 1 and 3:30 p. m. on that date to register.

He explained that since a minimum enrollment is required for a class to be offered, it is important for students who are not pre-registered to register on May 16 so that classes can be definitely scheduled.

Read said the emphasis for the spring intersession is somewhat different this year from past years. He explained that it consists of more non-required courses that involve special facilities and special locations and courses that are more suitable for being offered in a short period of time.

Courses in 20 subject matter areas will be offered during the intersession. They are:

Biology, child studies, criminology and corrections, elementary education, engineering and industrial technology, English, geology, guidance, health, home economics, industrial arts education, psychology, real estate, recreation, school administration and supervision, secondary education, social work, sociology, speech and hearing, and speech and theatre.

Highly concentrated in nature, classes during intersession generally meet for three hours 15 times for three semester hours of credit. However, some schedules vary.

Offerings during the intersession include both graduate and undergraduate courses. Information about the courses is available in the Registrar's Office in Sparks Hall on the campus.

Between 1948 and 1975 the number of self-employed workers in the nation's work force dropped from 19 per cent to only nine per cent. The biggest drop in self employment was in agriculture.

Medical Evidence In Disability Applications

In order to determine whether a person is eligible for Social Security disability benefits, it is necessary to obtain medical evidence of the person's illness or injury. The Social Security Administration tries very hard to make fair and reasonable decisions on all applications for payments. In many cases the decision is clear-cut. For example, an original birth certificate makes it easy to decide whether a person is age 65 or not. In some cases the decision is a bit more difficult, however. To decide whether a person is disabled within the meaning of the law, it is necessary to obtain medical evidence showing just how severe his disability is. Social Security employees are not allowed to use their own judgment and observations to make a decision of this sort. The law requires that disability be proven by medical evidence.

When you apply for disability payments, there are certain non-medical requirements that must be met. If these are met, you will be asked for the names, addresses, phone numbers, and dates of treatment for all doctors and hospitals that have medical information about your condition. You do not need to bring a medical report with you. An agency of your state makes the medical decisions for the Social Security Administration. This agency will contact your doctors and hospitals directly for medical reports. They will ask for the specific information they need in your case. Your doctor will not be asked to give a simple statement that you are disabled. Instead, he will be asked to furnish physical and laboratory findings, test results, and any other information that has a bearing on how severe your illness or injury is. If your doctor or hospital charges for furnishing this report, you are responsible for the fee.

Sometimes not enough information is available from these sources to make a decision. If this is the case, you may be asked to have an examination by your doctor or another doctor - in some cases, a specialist. Remember that in all cases, medical evidence of your disability must be obtained. If medical evidence fails to show that you are severely disabled, your claim cannot be approved. This is of course to insure that disability payments are made only to those people who are truly unable to work.

One final point: Obtaining medical evidence does take some time. It is best to apply for disability just as soon as you realize you will be unable to work for an extended period of time. There is a five-month waiting period before disability payments can begin in most cases (no waiting period for Supplemental Security Income disability payments), but if you apply early there will usually be ample time to get all the medical information before your first check is due. We suggest that you phone your Social Security office in Paducah at 443-7506 or the office in Mayfield at 246-8095 if you think you may possibly qualify for disability payments.

Red Tape Causing Problems For People Trying To Find Housing In Flood-Stricken Areas

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Federal red tape has tied up efforts to provide housing to thousands of persons in the hills of eastern Kentucky whose homes were inundated or washed away more than a month ago in the worst flooding to hit the area in decades.

Disaster officials estimate that as many as 16,000 persons displaced by floods still may be living with relatives or in temporary shelters.

Sen. Walter (Dee) Huddleston, D-Ky., has urged Housing — and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris to take steps to move more mobile homes into areas hit hardest by the flood.

He told her in a letter Wednesday that federal regulations are hampering efforts to house the homeless, citing a rule he said discourages placing temporary housing on flood plains.

"As everyone knows, there is little or no flat land in eastern Kentucky that is not in the flood plain," he said.

R. Jackson Ingram, director of HUD's disaster field office at London, Ky., said "we are continuing to house families as rapidly as possible."

"Given the problems that exist in the flood area, such as mountainous terrain, five days of rain, and lack of available existing housing in the area in which to place the families, we are faced with the equivalent of providing housing for a city with a population of 20,000 persons, scattered over a 5,000-square-mile area," Ingram said.

"Even under the most ideal circumstances," he said, "this would be a monumental task." The rain-swollen Cumberland, Big Sandy and Kentucky rivers swept out of their banks early in April, inundating Pikeville, Pineville, Harlan and Williamsburg and countless tiny hamlets. Water reached rooftops in many areas and President Carter declared 15 counties disaster areas.

Bill Kalbus, another HUD official at London, said the agency has received more than 5,300 applications for temporary housing "and applications still keep coming in."

He said 1,000 of those applications have been approved and that those families have received federal aid of one kind or another. "Of those who have applied we have assisted 1,000 families," Kalbus said. "If you use the average of four to a family, it would be about 4,000."

Using the same formula, he said, probably 16,000 still are living with friends or relatives. Huddleston told Mrs. Harris that he had received complaints about the "adequacy and speed in disaster relief efforts" and that several communities have requested a meeting with elected officials to discuss the situation.

"When that occurs," Huddleston said in the letter, "we would of course like to have you present."

"The information I have received from Pikeville, Harlan, Pineville and other areas indicates that federal efforts to secure mobile homes for displaced families has moved entirely too slowly, that red tape has been excessive, and that local conditions have not been taken into account."

Huddleston said that "other than food and water, housing must be the top priority of federal relief efforts and local officials indicate this priority is not being met."

"I would be appreciative if you would contact federal disaster officials and urge them to speed up the housing effort and impress upon them that maximum flexibility within the law should be used," Huddleston said in the letter.

County Judge Will Still Have Lot Of Work To Do

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Your new county judge will have a slight name change and will lose his judicial powers, but he still will have enough to do.

The revision under the Judicial Article approved by voters two years ago means the position will be called county judge-executive and the emphasis will be on administrative duties.

The attorney general's office has sent some advice to Campbell County Sheriff Bernard Sandfoss, who wrote that a controversy has arisen about the functions of county judges.

It said that despite the lack of judicial duties, the new judges will have these responsibilities:

—Providing for execution of ordinances and resolutions of the fiscal court, and executive all fiscal court contracts.

—Preparing for fiscal court approval a county administrative code of operating procedure.

—Furnishing fiscal court with information about county government operations.

—Requiring county officials who handle county money to make financial reports. —Preparing the annual budget, then administering it when it is passed.

—Keeping fiscal court advised as to the county's financial condition and needs, and making periodic reports.

—Exercising, with fiscal court approval, the power to appoint, supervise, suspend and remove county personnel, unless state law deems otherwise.

—Making appointments to or removing members from various boards and commissions, along with fiscal court approval.

"The county judge-executive (also) has certain reorganization powers and (authority) to create special districts, with fiscal court approval," Asst. Atty. Gen. Charles Runyan said Wednesday.

Many county judges were among those opposing the judicial reform referendum in 1975, fearing a considerable loss of power.

However, the posts don't lack for candidates in the coming May 24 primary.

District judges, who form a new tier in Kentucky's court system, will perform the judicial duties of county judges, starting Jan. 2.

They must be lawyers' whereas that was not a requirement for county judges.

Drake Concerned Over Slow Pace In Research On Energy By Government

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The man who heads Kentucky's Center for Energy Research says he's "frustrated and often angry" at the slow pace at which the federal government has moved on energy research.

David Drake blamed the decision making delays on the federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

In an interview Wednesday in his office, Drake said ERDA officials are overly cautious in financing energy research. ERDA approves proposals for federal grants for energy research.

"There's a desire to eliminate all risk," Drake said, "but to develop technology as quickly as we're trying to do it, failure is inherent — you've got to expect it."

"It doesn't mean you throw money at things, but they could be doing it much faster," he added.

Drake said ERDA is in a state of "limbo" because of the Carter Administration proposal to create a new energy agency, but he said whether the development of energy-related technology will be hastened remains to be seen.

Drake, who oversees Kentucky's $50 million Energy Trust Fund to finance energy research projects — said the federal government should contribute more to energy research, instead of relying so heavily on private industry.

"The 50-50 sharing (common for demonstration projects) is a lot of hogwash," he said, in view of the tremendous "costs" and high risks. He said it is unreasonable to ask industry to share equally in the cost of developing new technology.

(The state's contribution primarily is in the form of seed money used in preliminary engineering design).

Although energy products being developed now are not generally competitive with conventional fuels, the price structure will change, Drake said, and alternative energy sources must be developed now so they can be brought on line when needed.

Despite the slowness with which ERDA has moved, Kentucky researchers are engaged in a number of projects involving the use of coal.

Drake said the outlook for eastern Kentucky coal is bright, given the administration's energy policy. However, he said the market for western Kentucky coal probably will decline because of its high sulfur content.

About 10 per cent of the coal mined in eastern Kentucky meets federal clean air emission standards without cleaning, Drake said, but the rest is "dirty" coal with a higher sulfur content, though not as high as that mined in western Kentucky.

However, a new process is being developed that would make it feasible to mine and burn "dirty" coal without having to clean it, Drake said. The process involves burning coal in a fluidized bed combustion boiler, where it is mixed with another agent such as limestone. As the coal burns, looking like bubbling water, the sulfur reacts with the limestone to form a new chemical compound and falls out of the boiler bed.

Kentucky is working on the process in cooperation with the Tennessee Valley Authority, and Drake said it could have a significant impact on the coal market in the future.

Murray Lawyers At Public Defender Training Seminar

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Gary R. Haverstock and William Phillips, both Murray area lawyers, were among 135 Kentucky attorneys who attended the fifth annual Public Defender Training Seminar last week in Louisville.

The two-day conference included sessions on trial strategy, plea negotiations, sentencing alternatives, examination of witnesses, exhibiting evidence and the current status of Kentucky mental health laws.

Conference coordinator Bill Ayer, said this year's sessions brought more participation than in the past, "by using Kentucky cases and demonstrating, for instance, the cross examination of a witness. The response was very good," he said.

Out of state speakers were Judge Timothy Murphy of the D.C. Superior Court, and Judah Best, defense attorney for Spiro Agnew and Wayne Hayes, who talked about plea negotiations and sentencing alternatives.

The seminar opened on Monday with an address by Kentucky Bar Association President-elect Frank Haddad Jr. and closed Tuesday evening.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The retired Louisville policeman who told a Kentucky congressman about an alleged conspiracy to assassinate Martin Luther King Jr., refuses to talk to newsmen about the matter "until this investigation is over."

"I have no more comment," Mary Baird, wife of Clifton Baird, said Wednesday. "He's not going to talk to reporters until this investigation is over."

She has confirmed it was her husband who told Rep. Gene Snyder, R Ky., of the alleged plot.

Policeman Refuses To Talk On King Matter

Snyder said he was approached by a retired policeman who claimed to have been offered $500,000 by several fellow officers and FBI agents to kill the late civil rights leader.

King was shot to death in Memphis, Tenn. James Earl Ray is serving 99 years in prison for the murder.

Snyder, a conservative who had opposed continued life for the House assassinations committee before being contacted by Baird, changed his mind after receiving a letter and listening to a tape made by the retired policeman.

The tape allegedly made references to "King and money," Snyder said, and supposedly was hidden in Baird's car when he claimed an offer was made. The tape and a letter from Baird to Snyder that the congressman said listed names of about six Louisville policemen and several FBI agents has been turned over to the House committee.

Snyder said he met his informant and concluded he was a rational individual — "not a kook." C. J. Hyde, who was police chief before Baird retired, said recently he knew nothing of the allegations.

Attorney General To Investigate Nursing Homes

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Attorney General Robert Stephens says he will investigate the financial affairs and management of three northeast Kentucky nursing homes, at the request of local officials and in some instances of citizens on the nursing home boards.

Stephens said Wednesday that charges were made concerning the homes at a meeting he attended April 25 at Morehead.

He said he and William

Bissett, chief investigator for the attorney general's consumer protection division, met with "county attorneys, commonwealth's attorneys, and citizens who served on the boards ... a whole roomful of people" who requested the meeting.

"There were specific allegations made, but I can't discuss them at this time," Stephens said. "Each county is preparing a detailed, documented background of each case."

The Morehead News said in a copyrighted story Wednesday that Stephens is making a preliminary investigation of homes operated by Tensor, Inc., of Knoxville, Tenn., at Morehead, Mount Sterling and Ashland.

The paper quoted an "informed source" as citing possible misuse of part of the revenue from a $1.2 million city bond issue used to finance the 1973 construction and current expansion of the 111-bed Daniel Boone Convalescent Center in Morehead. Local officials grew concerned when local contractors and subcontractors on the job went to court earlier this year claiming they hadn't been paid for their work, the newspaper said.

Stephens discussed the case only generally, saying he has so far received only the background report on the Montgomery County Care Center, Inc., at Mount Sterling, and not the documents concerning the Morehead and Ashland homes.
